MOUNT VERNON.

Early last week there was left at many houses in Mount Vernon an envelope inclosing a printed slip calling attention to a remarkable discovery in cutlery, and saying that an agent would call in a day or two with seissors made of a peculiar metal, capable of cutting anything, from a stovepipe to the finest silk, and that they were "selfsharpening." The agent was promptly on time, and proved to be a middle-aged German, prepossers. in manner, who left the impression, though he ed to say it, "Pardon what I have spoke, for ing in manner, who left the impression, though he falled to say it, "Pardon what I have spoke, for "tis a studied, not a present ihought, by duty ruminated." After ringing the bell and meeting the lady of the house face to face, he would speak with sceming surprise: "Oh, madam, you must excuse me, but you so much resemble my daughter in Berlin." In some cases he would remark that the resemblance was of a niece, or a sister, or his mother. After this little introduction he would declare that he would send a picture, that the person might prove for herself that he spoke true, and a fine handkerchief, one of a number that he had smuggled, as a memento of the occasion. Then the scissors would be shown, and in some instances a purchaser secured at 50 or 75 cents for a pair that could be purchased anywhere else for 15 or 51 cents. One woman remarked to him on Saturday that he must have a large number of relatives in Berlin who resembled the Mount Vernon women, but he was not to be rebuffed in this way. He said he was of noble birth, and had many nieces, daughters and sisters, and that the women whom he met looked so much like each other that each of them resembled some one of his many relatives. The scissors, however, are evidently of malleable true and sisters, and that the women whom he met looked so much like each other that each of them resembled some one of his many relatives. ANTITOXIN HELPED THEM.

The Paterson (N. J.) Aldermen lately, at the re the Paterson to the Board of Health, appropriated $100 to the up a small quantity of antitoxin for free administration of the control of the in diphtheria cases. Two childres of Peter McCabe, of Market-st., had the disease in a very malignant form, but were treated with the new remely. One was out of danger yesterday and the other improving. The physicians think that both cases would have proven fatal save for the anti-texin. There are only four cases of diphtheria them to exist in the city at present. THE SKATING POND TAKEN FROM SIXTH-AVE. Those in authority in the Departments of Public Works and Street Cleaning are evidently early and attentive readers of The Tribune, as was shown by their prompt action in repairing the water main damage on Sunday night, as was described in The damage on Sunday night, as was described in The Tribune yesterday. Early yesterday morning a squad of men with carts were at work between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth sts., and the scene of the previous day's equine skating was a thing of the past. The broken water main was also repaired. Several damage suits will probably be brought sgainst the city, and the municipality will be compelled to pay handsomely for some official's carelessness.

ARRESTED AT THE WEDDING FRAST.

A YOUNG HUSBAND HAS TO ANSWER A COM-PLAINT MADE BY THE GIRL HE DID NOT MARRY-CONSIDERATION SHOWN BY A BAYONNE DETECTIVE.

Jesse Vreeland, the meter inspector for the Bay-onne Gas Company, married Miss Jennie Smith, of Chester, Penn., on Thursday last, at Chester. Twenty-four hours after the wedding he was under arrest for betrayal, and yesterday morning he faced Recorder Connelly, of Bayonne, on the charge.

Vreeland is young and good looking, and has been popular. He was a frequent attendant at the local dances given by the young people of Bay-onne and Bergen Point. He was a favorite with the fair sex, but there seemed to be little preference until he and Miss Smith became acquainted. They a marriage would result. Then Miss Smith moved from Bayonne to Chester, and the matter was forgotten, as it was supposed the attachment between he couple would die out. Miss Fannie Gordon was thought by many to have taken the place of the absent Miss Smith in the regard of Vreeland, as they were often seen in each by Vreeland that he and Miss Smith would be mar-

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Vreeland arrived at the home of the bridegroom's parents, No. 21 East Twenty-eighth-st., Bayonne. The elder Vreeland Twenty-eighth-st., Bayonne. The edger vrectand had prepared a reception for the young folks, and in the evening a number of friends arrived. After congratulations had been extended the party sat down to supper. While they were eating, Detective Griffing, of the Bayonne police, arrived at the house. Finding the festivities going on, he declined to interfere for the time, and contented himself with waiting in the reception-room until the guests had risen from the table. Then he made his mission known.

waiting in the receptoric them he made his mission known.

It then appeared that a few hours after Vreeland had left the city for Chester, Miss Gordon had gone before Recorder Connelly and toid him she was soon to become a mother, and that Vreeland was responsible for her condition. Poormaster James Driscoll, to whom the girl swore she would become a charge later on if some provision for her support was not made, was called into the conference, and, on the complaint of Miss Gordon, he got out a warrant for the arrest of Vreeland.

Detective Griffing put the warrant in his pocket and waited for the return of Vreeland. When the guests arose from the table the elder Vreeland was sent for by the detective and the story toid to him. He summoned the son, and the father, son and detective went at once before Recorder Connelly, who held Vreeland in $150 bail to await examination.

The father and son returned to the house, where the guests were enjoying themselves, ignorant of the arrest of the young man they were honoring. Recorder Connelly set the hearing in the case for yesterday morning. Colonel Charles W. Fuller, who was retained by Vreeland, asked for an adjournment, and it was granted after the bonds had been increased to $450. The case will be heard on February S.

Vreeland says the story told by Miss Gordon is roary 8.

Vreeland says the story told by Miss Gordon is untrue, so far as he is concerned. He says she would not have had him arrested had he not married Miss Smith. The bride believes that her husband is guiltiess. FOOTBALL MEN TO MAKE THEIR SCHEDULE

The National Association Football League will long-delayed schedule will be drawn up. It is expected that the games will be started about the second week in February and end about Decoration Day, thus giving the clubs ample time to play all their games. The League has been particularly for-tunate in the selection of officers, for all the men are enthusiastic in their support of the game, and ague. John A. Young, of the Brooklyn Wanders, is an ideal secretary, and his nomination was good move in the right direction, which was followed by the election of W. S. Gill as treasurer and Southern as president. Everything points to thecess of the organization, and it is expected that he line exhibitions of the game will be seen when teams of the Centreville Athletic Club, Brookin inderers and Americus Athletic Association come other.
